EXPLANATION.

Each Parish has been taken from its head, or farthest point from the sea-shore ; every plantation put by rotation as they occur, coming from one to the other, according to their locality, on the Prairies or Bayous in each Parish. The River Parishes are so arranged as to commence first on the right side, next upon the left side of the Mississippi River. West and East Feliciana and East Baton Rouge are all on the left side of the Mississippi River, one single plantation excepted : W. B. Turnbull's, on Red River Island. Pointe Coupée and West Baton Rouge are entirely on the right side of the Mississippi. The Parishes of Assumption and Lafourche Interior are exactly as the River Parishes, right and left. This is as far as sea-faring vessels go, and the distances are given. Please, however, note that sea vessels go into the Bayou Teche as far up New Iberia, where great quantities of Sugar and Molasses are shipped and cleared at the Franklin Customhouse, in the Parish of St. Mary, direct to the Atlantic markets.

THE CANE CULTURE.

The Cane culture in this State is well known to be exposed to certain unfavorable vicissitudes to which it is not liable in more southern latitudes, and hence its past history presents remarkable fluctuations in the product, as will be seen by the annexed statement, which gives the crop of each year, from 1828 to 1860, inclusive—a period of thirty-one years :

At the date of my last annual report, 22d February, 1860, the Sugar interest of Louisiana was prosperous, and the prospects of a good crop most encouraging. The fine condition of the Seed Cane, and the satisfactory state of the soil, with the quantity of land under cultivation, induced me to entertain flattering hopes of a large yield; a combination of favorable circumstances seemed to confirm these hopes, and to promise satisfactory results. These gratifying prospects continued in a great measure throughout the Spring, which set in very dry, giving an opportunity to thoroughly work the fields. But as the season advanced, the weather became very warm, until the temperature reached a point as high, perhaps, as was ever experienced in Louisiana. So severe was the drought, that in many districts where the Cane is cultivated, not sufficient rain fell to moisten the ground. The fields were baked by the extreme heat of the sun, and the Cane parched and withered, so that it perished for lack of moisture, instead of flourishing, as it usually does in July and August, which is the period of its most rapid growth.

Another cause of injury, which could not be anticipated, were the storms which occurred at three different periods, and of an intensity rarely if ever before known. The first was on the 11th and 12th of August, when a severe north-east gale entirely destroyed the settlement at Proctorville, on Lake Borgne, and inflicted serious injury on the plantations below the City on the left side of the Mississippi river, destroying back levees, and submerging entire plantations with sea water to such a degree, that the Cane never matured, and became so impregnated with salt as to prove utterly worthless.

The second of these storms occurred on the 15th September. Its ravages were principally confined to the Mississippi side and Mobile Bay, destroying wharves, and otherwise effecting serious injury in those localities. The last of this series of storms, and by far the most destructive, took place on the 2d of October. Its effects were more sensibly felt in Terrebonne, Lafource Interior, and St. Mary's Parishes, embracing the most productive Sugar region in the State. The winds were unusually violent, and by them Sugar Houses and Purgeries were blown down, and much damage done to machinery and other property. On many plantations all the large Cane yielded to the blast, and was laid flat on the ground, so that if the grinding season had not proven favorable, as was happily the case, but little Sugar would have been obtained from this source. The effect on the small Cane was equally injurious, for, shaken, as it was, at the roots by the wind, and not taking firm hold of the ground, it had only fairly commenced growing, when the Planters were taking it to the mill.

The season for grinding has proved unusually propitious. The weather in October, November, and to the 28th of December, was generally cool and dry, and most favorable for taking off the crop. This circumstance has contributed very materially towards retrieving the Sugar crop the past season; and most fortunate was it for those Planters who availed themselves of the continued fine weather, and deferred cutting their Cane to the last moment they could do so with safety. On the other hand, a great many, observing that their Cane at the approach of the cutting season, was not much larger than it was in the middle of July, and believing, from the experience of the last season, when a freeze on the nights of the 12th and 13th of November proved so disastrous, that it would not improve by remaining longer in the ground, commenced cutting in earnest. They have been most seriously injured by such hasty action. By comparing the year 1860 with 1859, the result shows, that the Planters generally begun Sugar-making too soon the past season, while in the one previous they commenced too late; and thus they did wrong in both instances.

As to the crop now being put in the ground, everything thus far promises well; a great deal of Cane has already been planted, the ground has been well prepared, and the weather has been mild and favorable. But it is impossible to foresee, or even to speculate upon, the future. My experience has fully satisfied me, that a crop of Sugar in Louisiana is subject to so many casualties, that the best judgment may be at fault when it attempts to predict uncertainties. The Planters may benefit from the past, and avoid mistakes which were the consequences of want of prudence, foresight, or skill; the result remains with Him who controls the seasons. I can only hope that larger crops and better prices will reward the labors of the Planters, than they have realized the past few years.

Respectfully,

P. A. CHAMPOMIER,

NEW ORLEANS, 20th February, 1861.

INTRODUCTION.

Le 22 Février 1860, date de mon dernier rapport annuel, l'intérêt sucrier de la Louisiane était prospère et la perspective d'une bonne récolte des plus encourageantes. L'état du plant de canne, celui du sol, la quantité de terre en culture, m'autorisaient à espérer un produit abondant. Des circonstances favorables semblaient devoir réaliser cette espérance et amener un résultat heureux. La perspective se maintint pendant presque tout le printemps qui fut d'abord très sec et permit ainsi un travail complet dans les champs, mais à mesure que la saison s'avavançait la chaleur augmentait et il vint un moment où la température devint aussi intense qu'elle ne l'avait peut-être jamais été en Louisiane. La sécheresse fut telle que dans bien des districts où la canne est cultivée, il ne tomba pas assez de pluie pour humecter le sol. L'ardeur du soleil durcit la terre, sécha la canne qui périt faute d'eau au lieu de croître comme elle le fait ordinairement en Juillet et en Août, époques de sa croissance la plus rapide.

Un autre malheur auquel on ne pouvait pas s'attendre survint ensuite : je veux parler des ouragans qui éclatèrent à trois époques différentes et furent d'une violence dont il y a peu d'exemples. Le premier éclata du 11 au 12 Août ; un coup de vent venu du Nord-Est détruisit entièrement Proctorville, sur le Lac Borgne, et fit un mal considérable sur les habitations situées au-dessous de la ville, sur la rive gauche du Mississippi, renversa les levées de derrière et l'eau de la mer inonda tellement les champs que la canne ne mûrit jamais et fut si imprégnée de sel qu'elle perdit toute sa valeur.

Le second ouragan éclata le 15 Septembre. Les ravages ne s'étendirent guère au-delà du côté de l'Etat du Mississippi et de la Baie de Mobile ; les quais furent renversés et les localités souffrirent beaucoup sous d'autres rapports. Le dernier et celui dont les suites furent encore plus terribles eut lieu le 2 Octobre. Les Paroisses Terrebonne, Lafourche Intérieure et Ste. Marie, les régions sucrières les plus fertiles de l'Etat, s'en ressentirent davantage. Le vent, qui soufflait avec plus de violence que par le passé, renversa les sucreries, les purgeries, et endommagea fortement les machines et autres propriétés. Sur un grand nombre d'habitations toutes les hautes cannes furent couchées par terre, de sorte que si l'époque de la roulaison n'avait pas été favorable comme par bonheur elle l'a été, on n'aurait obtenu que peu de sucre de ces paroisses. L'effet du coup de vent sur les petites cannes ne fut pas moins à regretter, car, ébranlée à la racine et n'étant pas retenue suffisamment au sol, cette canne avait à peine commencé à pousser lorsque les planteurs la transportaient au moulin.

La saison a rarement été aussi propice pour la roulaison. En Octobre, Novembre, et jusqu'au 28 Décembre, nous avons eu en général un temps frais et sec et très favorable pour la coupe des cannes. Cette circonstance a beaucoup contribué à réparer les pertes et il est bien heureux que ceux des planteurs qui, voulant profiter du beau temps, avaient attendu jusqu'au dernier moment pour couper leurs cannes, aient pu le faire sans danger. D'un autre côté, beaucoup d'entre eux, s'apercevant que leurs cannes, à l'approche de la saison de couper, n'étaient guère plus grosses qu'au milieu de Juillet, et croyant, depuis la désastreuse gelée du 12 et du 13 Novembre de la saison dernière, qu'elle ne s'amélioreraient pas en restant davantage en terre, se mirent à couper activement. Leur empressement a été très nuisible à ces cannes. En rapprochant l'année 1860 de 1859 on verra, par le résultat, que les planteurs commencèrent à rouler trop tôt la saison dernière, trop tard antérieurement, et qu'ils eurent tort dans les deux cas.

Quant à la récolte qui est en terre et celle qu'on est sur le point d'y mettre, tout jusqu'ici s'annonce bien. On a déjà beaucoup planté, le sol a été convenablement préparé, le temps a été doux et favorable, mais il est impossible de rien prévoir. Mon expérience m'a pleinement convaincu qu'une récolte de sucre en Louisiane est exposée à tant d'éventualités que l'homme dont le jugement serait le plus sain pourrait se tromper en essayant de lire dans l'avenir. Les planteurs peuvent profiter du passé et éviter les erreurs qui provenaient d'un manque de prudence, de prévoyance ou d'habileté—le reste appartient à Celui qui règle les saisons. Je dois me contenter de faire des vœux pour que les habitants trouvent dans des récoltes plus abondantes et des prix plus élevés une récompense que ne leur ont pas donnée leur travaux depuis plusieurs années.

Respectueusement,

P. A. CHAMPOMIER.

By the preceding statistics, it will be seen that the total receipts of Foreign Raw Sugars into the United States (California and Oregon excepted) for the year ending December 31, 1860, were 341,532 tons, against receipts in 1859 of 262,829 tons. The quantity of Foreign withdrawn for consumption in 1860 was 296,950 tons, against 239,034 tons in 1859. Thus, the quantity of Foreign received and consumed, is greater, by a very considerable amount, than ever before, in the history of the Trade. But notwithstanding this large increase in the Importation of Foreign, it was barely sufficient to counterbalance the serious decline in the production of Domestic, which, as compared with the previous crop, shows a falling off of 74,389 tons, and hence the Total in 1860, varies but little from the Total in 1859. Total Consumption of Foreign and Domestic, in 1860, 415,281 tons, against 431,184 in 1859; being a decrease in the Consumption of 1860, as compared with 1859, of 15,903 tons, or 3 11-16 per cent.

GENERAL REMARKS.

In my report of the crop of each plantation, I have, as much as it has been in my power, extended the crops in actual hogsheads, and paid no regard whatever to either the quantity in pounds, value or quality of their contents, as every one is aware that they differ materially in all these particulars. But very few planters are opposed to this method of reporting their crops, and these are to be found amongst those working by the different new processes, whilst others reproach me with wishing to swell the extent of the crop of Louisiana. I should like to have them reflect on the difference it would make in my report if I was to call a hogshead 1000 pounds, as some of them would have me to do. No one could understand where so many hogsheads of Sugar had been found by me, when no one else could see them. Let it be well understood that the different plantations of Louisiana furnish to the commerce of the country, hogsheads of considerable difference, as well in value as in weight and quality of contents. It is well known that our planters do not make hogsheads of the same size, and there is a wide margin in some of them.

In making my estimate of the total amount of the crop in pounds, I have concluded, after due investigation, to adopt the ratio of 1150 pounds per hogshead, as being the proper estimate upon the gross amount of the total crop—the Sugar having been generally of an inferior quality.

The product of forty-nine plantations, worked by the vacuum and other new processes, and amounting to 27,399 hogsheads, I class as a distinct and separate article, some being refined, clarified, etc, and all these planters working their cistern Sugars, and a few even some of their Molasses, which are returned in their crops as Sugar, although oftentimes of a rather inferior quality.

I have found, that of the Sugar-houses in operation in this State, some 1292 of them have given an aggregate production of 228,753 hogsheads Sugar, weighing, according to my estimate, 263,065,000 pounds of all sorts, including the cistern bottoms, 1009 of the plantations being worked by steam and 283 by horse power.

The production of Molasses has been as large as the previous season ; I have, therefore, thought that about 70 gallons per thousand pounds sugar would be a proper estimate ; say about 18,414,550 gallons, against 17,858,100 the year previous.

Respectfully,

P. A. CHAMPOMIER.

OBSERVATIONS GÉNÉRALES.

Dans mon rapport de la production de chaque habitation, je n'ai qu'autant qu'il a été en mon pouvoir porté le chiffre de chaque une dans mes colonnes qu'en boucauts réels, tels qu'ils se comportent, et n'ai nullement eu égard à la quantité de livres, ni à la valeur, pas plus qu'à la qualité de leur contenu, chacun sachant très bien qu'il existe de très grandes variations dans toutes ces particularités. Il n'y a que fort peu de planteurs qui soient opposés à cette manière de rapporter leurs récoltes, et ceux-ci se trouvent parmi les nouveaux procédés, pendant que d'autres sont sous l'impression que mon désir serait de chercher à enfler la récolte de la Louisiane. J'aimerais à les voir réfléchir et considérer la différence que cela ferait dans mon relevé de la récolte, si j'établissais une moyenne de mille livres au boucaut, comme quelques-uns d'eux voudraient que je fisse ; on pourrait avec raison demander où je trouve autant de boucauts de sucre, que personne ne verrait que moi-même. Je désire donc, qu'il soit bien entendu que je prétends dire que les habitations sucrières de la Louisiane fournissent au commerce du pays des boucauts de sucre de toutes capacités, ainsi que de toutes qualités. Du reste, chacun sait fort bien que nos planteurs ont le droit de faire leurs boucauts de la grandeur qui leur convient.

En faisant mon estimé du total de la récolte en livres, j'ai pensé d'après mes recherches faites, qu'il serait rationnel d'adopter un avarage de 1150 livres par boucaut, sur la totalité de la récolte. Les sucres ayant été généralement de qualité inférieure.

Le produit de 49 habitations exploitées par le vacuum ou nouveaux procédés, se montant à 27,399 boucauts, je classe comme un article à part, tel que sucre raffiné, clarifié, etc., etc. Les propriétaires de ces différentes manufactures me rapportent
